Professional sports teams are usually audited by one of the Big 4, if they audited at all. Try your luck to get on that engagement (which will probably be very hard considering everyone probably wants to be on that client). Get the relevant experience and try your luck at getting into a sports team when a position opens up. I know a guy in my office that was the Senior in the audit for a major sports team in a major city.

In many ways, Piazza's eventual induction has long seemed a foregone conclusion. He finished his career with a.308 batting average, 427 home runs and 1,335 RBIs, starting 85 percent of his games behind the plate. Piazza slugged.545 for his career, the 28th highest mark in history, and reached base 38 percent of the time..
