In recent years, we've seen teams wait out players, especially those with qualifying offers and the accompanying draft pick loss, later than we ever have before. The C word ("collusion") has started to make the rounds and it's not hard to see why, if you consider the current landscape with so, so many players, even those without the dreaded QOs attached, remaining unsigned almost dakota dozier jersey halfway into January. It's not that hard to imagine the kony ealy jersey owners, who havequite the history of doing so, working together to ensure that the players get less, but there are certainly other explanations out there for what's going on.

In 2000, the Chargers had their worst season; they went 1 15, with their only win on a last second field goal against the Kansas City Chiefs. Riley's last game was indicative of his last season, as the Chargers played well, but one poor play turned the tide. The 2001 Chargers ended their 5 11 season with a loss to the Seattle Seahawks, after Doug Flutie passed for 377 yards and drove for the tying field goal with 16 seconds remaining, but poor special teams play led to a long Seahawks kick return and subsequently a 54 yard winning field goal.
