A mock draft at this time of year is a good way to learn the names of the top prospects in the nation, start to identify the needs of each club and get a look at how those needs and values match up. Of course, firings, hirings and free agency will change things, but this mock draft is an introduction to how the draft landscape looks right now. With the No.

Brady threw the third most deep passes in the NFL this year, with 80 attempts, but ranked 11th in passer rating on such throws (88.5), with only five touchdowns to four interceptions. That's down significantly on 2016, where he had eight TDs and only one pick, for a 124.4 rating. Maybe old father time is finally catching up with the 40 year old QB and, specifically, his arm strength?

After the 2001 NFL season, Len Dawson and Nick Buoniconti retired from the show. From 2002 2007 seasons, the show was hosted by Bob Costas with former players Dan Marino, Cris Collinsworth, and Cris Carter serving as co hosts. Bob Costas acknowledged this change in the season's first episode and paid tribute to the former hosts, saying they paved the way for the show to succeed.
