On January 19, 2002, the Chicago Bears met the Philadelphia Eagles in the NFC Divisional Playoffs with Miller as quarterback. The Eagles were ahead 6 0 early in the second quarter when Miller threw an interception; during the runback, Eagles' defensive end Hugh Douglas delivered a hit to Miller that resulted in a separated shoulder; Douglas was later fined $35,000 by the NFL.[16][17] Miller had passed for only 23 yards (3 for 5, with 1 interception) in what was his lone playoff appearance, and Shane Matthews, who replaced Miller for the rest of the game, only passed for 66 yards (8 for 17, with 2 interceptions), as the Bears lost to the Eagles, 33 19.[18]Miller lost his position as starting quarterback in 2002. Although he did not make a pass attempt thereafter, he received a Super Bowl ring as the backup quarterback for the 2004 New England Patriots.[19] Before the 2005 season, Miller signed with the New York Giants, but was released after having hip surgery and receiving an injury settlement.[20]Miller served as the color commentator for Michigan State football radio broadcasts and hosted the weekly post game call in show from 2006 until he took a communications position with the Bears in 2013; he was replaced by Jason Strayhorn.[23] Miller currently serves as a studio analyst on Bears Postgame Live for NBC Sports Chicago, having replaced former Bears legend Richard Dent in 2007.[24] Miller is the current co host of "Movin' the Chains" along with Pat Kirwan on SiriusXM NFL Radio, Channel 88.[25] Miller and Kirwan are featured as analysts in Longshot, a story mode within Madden NFL 18.[26]Hidden categories: NFL player missing current team parameterInfobox NFL biography articles missing alt textAll articles with unsourced statementsArticles with unsourced statements from January 2018.
