"Janay Rice has been supportive of her husband and criticized his indefinite suspension by the NFL". I chose this quote because I found it very shocking that his fiance that was beaten up by Ray Rice is defending him and accusing the media for getting into their private lives. She is probably doing this out of fear from him.

Spending a top five pick on an offensive guard might not seem like a franchise saving move, but Denver desperately needs a reliable left guard. Notre Dame's Quenton Nelson looks like one of the best prospects there in years. He may ultimately be a trade down option if the Broncos decide to swap first rounders with a team in need of a quarterback, but there's no doubt he'd be an instant impact player.
